Witnesses Take Stand in Stroble Case

Los Angeles, Jan. 5 — (AP) — Fred Stroble's daughter and the mother of the six-year-old child he is accused of murdering testified as prosecution witnesses at his trial.

His daughter, Mrs. Sylvia Hausman, wiped away tears yesterday as she identified photographs of her home, where the 68-year-old former baker is accused of choking, beating and stabbing little Linda Joyce Glucoft to death last Nov. 1.

Mrs. Hausman also identified the blanket in which the little girl's body was found, the knitted tie used to choke her, a kitchen knife, an ice pick, a hammer and an ax which the state contends were used in the sex-slaying.

She told how on the fatal day she took her own daughter Rochelle, also six, to a party and left Stroble home. When they returned at six o'clock, Mrs. Hausman said, Stroble had gone.

The witness trembled as she recalled that Rochelle and Linda Joyce were "little playmates" and saw each other "every day."

Asked if Stroble knew Linda Joyce, Mrs. Hausman murmured "Yes. He played with her."

The little victim's mother, Mrs. Jules Glucoft, dressed in funeral black, said Rochelle was "a very sweet child. The last words she heard Linda Joyce speak, Mrs. Glucoft said, were: 'I'm going to play with Rochelle.'"

Atty. Adolph Alexander said in his opening statement that the prosecution will prove that Stroble took the Glucoft girl into a bedroom and choked her while she fought back and screamed.

Defense attorneys Al Matthews and John J. Hill of the public defender's office said Stroble will be portrayed as a senile peevish, "whiskey brain," a mentally sick man who thinks and acts like a child.

The commission looked into the question why some subscribers were assessed a mileage charge.

Fort Smith, Jan. 5 — (AP) — Ralph Lee, managing editor of the Southwest American, says Lawrence Seton Ross, worked for several labor publications here during 1931-36, but never was employed on a newspaper while in Fort Smith.

Ross testified at the trial of Henry Bridges in San Francisco that he worked on newspapers in Fort Smith and Russellville, Ark., before going to Memphis, where he presently is employed.

Bridges is charged with being a communist.

Memphis, Jan. 5 — (AP) — Harold Raymond Houchins is to be tried here Jan. 12 on a charge of stealing a watch last February. The 23-year-old former medical student from Flippin, Ark., was arrested here recently after his conviction in Little Rock on a charge of murder. He was free on bond, pending an appeal from the 15-year sentence in Arkansas at the time. The appeal was not perfected.

Memphis, Jan. 5 — (AP) — The Rev. Chester R. Parker, McCrory, Ark., has accepted a call to become pastor of the National Avenue Baptist church here. He succeeds the Rev. William E. Lyles, who went to Turrell, Ark., last year.

Pine Bluff, Jan. 5 — (AP) — Former Grant county Judge John L. West, 82, died in a hospital here yesterday. He had resided at Watson Chapel since 1916.

Little Rock, Jan. 5 — (AP) — Two firms have filed articles of incorporation at the secretary of state's office. They are:

Fikes Auto Service Co., of Pine Bluff, listing authorized capital at $25,000. Incorporators: Arthur Fikes, S. H. Carnahan and Louis J. Carnahan.

Credit Service Exchange, Inc., Jonesboro, a collection agency, listing authorized capital of 1,990 shares of no par value stock. Incorporators: Ivan Goodwin, Frank Snelgrove Jr., and Julian James.

Little Rock, Jan. 5 — (UP) — More unemployment checks were distributed in 1949 in Arkansas than at any time in the history of the state. Homer M. Adkins, employment security administrator, said today.

Benefits totaled $6,766,154 contained in 49,044 checks, he said. It was in 1948 when $3,198,940 was paid in 28,183 checks.

The Yellow River and the Yellow Sea are named because of the color of the water. The Yellow River is named because of the huge amounts of soil washed into the sea by the river.

As time went on and more intricate "bust the bank" problems reared their nasty heads too. Apparently, as I quickly learned, while a mutual love of Bach and a kindred loathing of Gertrude Stein may make the genesis of a very satisfactory courtship, they do not necessarily insure a fine marriage. In wedlock, it is the big things that count most, like: "Why aren't the shirts back yet from the laundry?" "What happened to the $3. for the milkman that was left on the refrigerator?" and, "Fish again? Oh Heavens!"

Money (that ugly word!) is the root of much unhappy matrimonial disorder. The original difficulty probably arose because many men labor under the misapprehension that their financial support is the pivotal point of the union, and regard their limited contributions as the family exchequer the way most people look upon their own philanthropy to the displaced persons of Europe. The fallacy is as obvious as the smell of a rotten egg. Any man who honestly adds up the housekeeping, housecleaning, ing hostessing, humoring, and companionship services he gets from a wife should realize that he's getting it all for less than wholesale and what's more, should be honored to pay. There is no doubt about it: marriage must have been invented by a man.

When I was first married, my mother suggested that John give me a regular allowance each week for my own expenses, or else keep one for himself, and let me pilot us by the bank. Either idea, she insisted was solid marital principle, and this is unfortunately true. Many husbands and wives abandon community planning completely when the Yankee dollar is involved, and proceed strictly on the political doctrine of "To the victor belong the spoils," like two hungry dogs scrapping for the same bone.

"I don't like it," said John when I told him. "Whatever money we managed to get is not mine or yours, but ours. If marriage is a partnership, why shouldn't I extend to the partnership property? Why should either one of us be rationed, with the other in a position to dole out little extras like a special handbag for you, or a humidifier for me? My wallet," he said, with a final flourish "is yours."

But the principle thus installed, remained. Its subsequent success, moreover, has often made me

PAY AS YOU DRIVE—The coin meter system of meeting payments, used successfully on refrigerator and television sales, has spread to auto sales. Lila McCauley, above, shows how the meter plan, devised by a Chicago auto agency, works. Drop a quarter in the meter; the gadget releases enough gas to the carburetor to keep you going for a spell. When your next quarter is due, a loud buzzer sounds a warning. Ever so often a collector comes around for the quarters. For emergency use, four slugs a month are supplied by the dealer.

AMERICAN MINIATURE—This new lightweight car, built to sell for about $500, was introduced in San Diego, Calif., by its designer, T. P. Hall. The car weighs only 775 pounds, has a top speed of 45 miles an hour and can get 45 miles to a gallon of gas. Hall says it is built largely of aluminum alloy and plastic materials.

CHAMP "PURSIAN"—Screen star Yvonne De Carlo holds the Blue Persian, "Champion Masterpiece," who is getting set to defend his title in the Hollywood cat show. With Yvonne on his side, the champ looks plenty confident.

I Love My Doctor

The Story: John and I eloped several months ago. He opened his doctor's office in our four-room apartment. We waited and finally got our first patient. And during this time we found many adjustments to make, financial and otherwise, in our individual lives.

As time went on and more intricate "bust the bank" problems reared their nasty heads too. 1,234 Employees of Red River Arsenal Let Out

Texarkana, Tex., Jan. 5 — (AP) A cut in funds for the Red River arsenal will cause about 1,234 employees to lose their jobs by Feb. 1. Col. Selby H. Frank, commanding officer at the government's plant near here, said notices to employees who will be cut from the payrolls will be mailed about Jan. 16.

He said a slash in the budget doubt those popular tales of feminine extravagance that dot our current fiction. Only a lady on an allowance without any notion of just what the jackpot behind her is, will recklessly succumb to each new dress that she sees, or fall victim to each new hat. The average American wife, if entrusted with the family funds as is careful of her charge as a hen sitting on an egg. No grandiose tipping, no highest-priced entrees on the menu (peculiarly male offenses) are ever tolerated; and frankly, it is my conviction that if any woman ever got put in the White House, this country would not only balance its budget, but have a beautiful nest egg besides.

Another treacherous area in marriage involves personal temperament.

John and I had our own. No man's land. It was ascending to discover, for instance, in fairly quick time, that John who was a vigilant Paul Revere and Jack Dalton rolled into one where his medical practice was concerned was "What you can tomorrow never do today," otherwise. This male creed, which resulted in doorknobs that were rarely replaced, suits that never got to the tailors until they were beyond reclaim, and pictures that were tardily hung, was not very endearing to my own mind, whose motto was "A stitch in time leaves you free tomorrow."

There was also the seemingly small, but to me all-important matter of going to sleep. Simple humdrum business, you may think, but not for us. By habit and inclination, I soon discovered that whereas I invariably took 30 or more minutes to drift off, for John a pair of pajamas and a comfortable bed acted like an overdose of morphine.

Psychiatrists, as I am well aware, have some fancy labels to attach to both states of mind, but naturally these were of no help to either of us. Whether a particular mental disorder is traced to a great grandmother's dislike for green apples, or a red balloon in a frustrated childhood, the cure is almost non-existent; first, since there is no actual standardized treatment available and second, since if the sufferer had the necessary will power to overcome the complex by mere analysis and suggestion, he probably wouldn't have developed it in the first place.

The difficulty in synchronizing our sleeping habits was further complicated by my desire to rehash the day's events, like a courtroom summation, before retiring. John's sleeping grunts, on the few occasions when I tried this "man to man" talk were definitely incapable of passing for conversation, and I gave up my disgust that I was delivering an unappreciated Shakespearean soliloquy.

"Why don't you just go to sleep like I do?" he asked, finally, when I complained about having to stay up alone in the dark.

"I can't," I said. "I told you that I never could."

"It's easy," John answered smugly. "Just close your eyes, and that does it. Soft bed, closed eyes and the rest comes like a conditioned reflex."

"You're a brute!" I groaned, and turned away.

President Truman's "state of the union" message to congress is filled with references to the grace and power of God, to religious ideals, to freedom of worship and to the divine command that men love one another.

By strange chance the Moscow Journal of Science and Life gives what in effect (though not actually) is the communist answer to the President. The magazine publishes an article saying many people in the U. S. S. R. continue to believe in God, and calling for education of the masses in the spirit of atheism. The Moscow writer declares the struggle against religious prejudices is one of the forms of the struggle for communism.

There we have presented in succinct form the pro and con of one of the fundamental points of conflict between communism and democracy. Indeed it may be that the outcome will pivot on this point of atheism versus religion.

The fight over this issue is daily becoming hotter.

I return to the question of religion again in our column not only because of its importance but because my mail from many parts of the country indicates deep interest in the subject. I get vigorous letters from both sides of the fence — from believers, and from deniers — from the wool a theists whose mildest sin is a vague "Come, come, now, bless me, no more of this bunk about religion."

One point of course is that aggressive dictatorships don't thrive on religion. As communism puts it, religion is the opiate of the masses. It was precisely for this reason that Hitler tried to destroy religion in Germany. Among the archives in Berlin was one which declared that christianity was the greatest enemy of nazism.

Hitler concentrated his main effort on the children on the basis that "just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined." It's harder to change the beliefs of the grown-ups you have to catch 'em young.

I saw a good deal of Germany just before the war, and the hold Hitler had on the young folk was amazing. It was more than that — it was terrifying to those who realized what the fuhrer had in his evil mind.

Tacit recognition of the importance of working on the young people is seen in a remark in the science and life article. The writer said that even among the youth there can be found churchgoers in Russia. So communism hasn't reformed all the masses.

However, as I pointed out in a recent column, there is an organized offensive proceeding among the satellite countries of Eastern Europe to eliminate religion. The drive centers on the children and is particularly intense in the schools.

Communism is building, not for today, but for a dozen years hence. Thus the struggle between the Red men and the churches of various denominations in Eastern Europe is growing more bitter daily.

It is an effort on the one hand to re-make the mentality of entire populations, and on the other hand to maintain the spiritual beliefs

Reaction to Truman's Message

Washington, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Here, as in other parts of the country, the President's message to Congress was received with interest and approval.

Supporters of the President's message pointed out that the President had called for a "new deal" for the American people, and that the President had called for a "new deal" for the American people.

Businessmen and labor leaders alike praised the President's message, and many of them said that they were glad to see the President's message.

Some of the things that the President said in his message were that he would support the anti-trust laws, and that he would support the labor laws.

The Columbus home demonstration club met Monday 19 at the home of Mrs. R. C. Stuart with fifteen members present.

Mrs. J. O. Johnson, Sr. gave the devotional. Prayer was given by Mrs. J. E. Delaney. The song "Silent Night" was sung by the group. During the business session, leaders were appointed for the year. The story, "The Littlest Angel" was read by Mrs. J. E. Delaney.

The Stuart home was beautifully decorated in keeping with the Christmas season. The mantel was banked with greenery and tapers. The outstanding feature being a brilliantly lighted Christmas tree laden with gifts for everyone present.

The hostesses were Mrs. R. C. Stuart, Mrs. C. R. White and Mrs. J. E. Delaney. The guests were invited into the dining room where delicious refreshments were served. The gifts were taken from the tree.

The next meeting will be at the lunch room.

When the roadway is a skidway, beware of rapid acceleration, quick stops and sudden swerves. Also deadly are excessive speed, especially on turns, and uneven braking.

Formosa Has Always Been a Seat of Trouble and History Is Apparently Repeating

By DeWitt MacKenzie
Ap Foreign Affairs Analyst
As far back as annals run, the strategic island of Formosa off the southeast coast of China has been a seat of trouble at frequent intervals. Its history is repeating itself in disconcerting fashion.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek having chosen this big, clam-shaped isle for his last-ditch stand against the conquering communists, the question arises as to how far the United States should go in defending this position against the Reds. Loss of Formosa to the communists would create a dangerous position in the American chain of air bases at key points from Alaska to the Philippines.

Opinions differ (and in high quarters) regarding what action Uncle Sam should take. Starting at the top, President Truman is said to have reaffirmed an American policy which would bar any use of U. S. troops to try to prevent the island from falling into communist hands. However, this reported decision would permit a continuance of economic help, political support and advisory aid for General Chiang.

As for the program, congress probably will pass some of it, leave most unpassed, which is what it did with the same program last year.

The Democrats now have a slim majority in congress. But the Trumanite Democrats became a minority any time the Southern Democrats want to break away and vote with the Republicans.

So long as this up-and-downy situation continues in congress, with neither side in strong control, any program, Democrat or Republican, will have slow going, and we'll get more talk than action.

In a two-party country like this, a fairly well divided congress is a check against either side going too far too fast. That's the argument out one too much control by any one party.

The other side of the argument is this: If at any time the voters give any one party big majority in congress, it's because at that time the voters like that party's program and want it carried out.

If you read Mr. Truman's message to congress yesterday, you could almost see him laying the groundwork for the congressional elections late this year.

There were a number of things in that message—like civil rights, a national health insurance program, and a national health insurance program.

There was no need to say more, since they're dead ducks this year, but they'll serve as campaign material when elections come around, because the Trumanites can point to them and say:

"We wanted to put these things through in 1949. We wanted to put

Family Circle Is Being Replaced

Today in many Hempstead county homes, the comics and radio are replacing the traditional family circle in providing entertainment for children, home demonstration agent Lorraine Blackwood told homemakers. Reading aloud, whether one person or in turns by the parents, is a fine way of creating sharing in the family group.

To see that today's children do not miss the fellowship and fun that family reading provides, Mrs. Blackwood suggested that homes place more emphasis on the family bookshelf. Reading for all family members is to be encouraged.

Large displays of books in stores are often confusing. The home demonstration agent or the family life leader in the home demonstration clubs can help in selecting suitable books. They can give suggestions for good books suitable to be read aloud for sharing by all family members. On their list are also suggestions to be read alone.

There are books for the youngest listener, the school age child, the young adult, the teen-ager, and grandparents, she stated. There are story books on that list and books of an informative nature sure to please those concerned with earning ways to live a rich life.

Family reading is an art which cannot be substituted, advised Mrs. Blackwood.

Increase in Electrical Equipment

Hempstead county families are buying more and more electrical equipment and report they find it increasingly difficult to make wise decisions as to what to buy next. Home Demonstration Agent Lorraine Blackwood pointed out today that each family's list will of necessity be different from their neighbors, and that it is important to decide which piece of equipment will contribute most to family life.

Many electrical appliances contribute to health and comfort and aid in household tasks, Mrs. Blackwood explained. This electrical equipment can be divided into three groups according to frequency of use: (1) daily, (2) periodical, and (3) seasonal.

For the convenience of those planning now to buy equipment, the home demonstration agent has set up lists as guides for use of equipment in group one—for daily operation—are included lights, refrigerator, water system, radio, percolator range and many others.

Periodically used electric equipment includes iron, churn, washing machine, food mixer, waffle iron, roaster, toaster sewing machine heating pad, hair curlers and such.

Group three equipment used seasonally, includes fans, meat chopper, space heater and many others used for only one type of operation.

Mrs. Blackwood suggested that families study the job that each piece of electrical equipment will do for them, and then obtain the appliances through again this year. But we don't have enough votes in congress. Give us the majority we need."

And the answer of the voters ought to tell the Democrats and Republicans pretty clearly what the people want, or don't want.

Parade of Progress

Introduction of canned fruits and vegetables was a milestone in the progress of food retailing. Since that time many other changes have been made until today we have in America the world's most efficient system of food distribution. And for more than half a century Kroger has been a leader in bringing greater variety in high quality food products to homemakers at close-to-cost prices.

WILLIAMS' PEPPERMINT CURE

Corkey Is Happiest Kid in U. S.

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS

Washington, Jan. 5 — (UP) — "Corky" probably is the sleepest kid in the capital today; also the cockiest.

"Corky" is the seven-year-old son of Walter B. Huber, Democratic congressman from Akron, O. He was sleepy because he stayed up late to see if he could catch himself coming back on television.

He was cocky because President Truman shook him by the hand as he left the house chamber after delivering his state of the union message yesterday before the joint session of congress.

"Corky" spent a good part of last night switching the dials back and forth on his father's television set in order to see himself in the film repeats of President Truman's address. The film had not been listed in newspaper schedules.

"Golly," he said. "I had to miss 'Howdy Doody,' a keen Western film, 'Lucky Pup' and my favorite cartoons, but it was worth it."

The blond boy, spruced in a suit with long pants was sitting on the aisle as Mr. Truman left the floor.

"Corky" whose first name is Walter like his dad's, said that the chief called him a good boy and asked:

"Would you like to be President some day?"

The President smiled when Corky answered "no."

Shaking the hand of great men has its compensations and "Corky" is experienced. He met Gen. Ike Eisenhower once and clasped the hand of the famed soldier. He managed to re-sell the handsake back around the neighborhood for a penny a shake.

He's thinking of raising the ante to two cents for a Truman shake. "But even better yet," he said. "My daddy says I won't have to wash my hands for a long time. I don't want to wipe off any of the shake. I might not get my price."

"Corky" paid more attention to the President's weighty words on the state of things than some of the other youngsters who sat on the laps of their fathers on the floor of the house.

One little boy about four in royal blue, turtle-necked sweater dozed off to sleep and came to with a yip when his old man gave him a nudge.

Another lad sitting close to the front was a squimer. He seemed vastly more interested in watching the antics of the cameramen in the gallery over his head than what the boss had to say.

Two little girls in the back were dressed in red, providing a flash occupied helping their father turn the pages of a copy of Mr. Truman's manuscript.

One little boy who seemed half asleep was jerked to the alert when the President predicted that by the year 2000 A.D. America would produce goods worth a trillion dollars. The kid counted on his fingers, possibly trying to break that colossal figure down to lolly pops.

A little girl in a modest paid shirt and bright yellow sweater didn't pay much attention to what the President was saying. She looked this way and that and finally found something that quieted her fidgets.

Her eye caught the gorgeous orchid with Nourse Rogers, the lady congressman from Massachusetts, was wearing on her left shoulder.

Moscow Suffers Severest Cold Since 1941-42

Moscow, Jan. 5 — (AP) — Moscow, with temperatures dropping to 30 degrees below zero (Fahrenheit), was gripped today in its sharpest cold wave since the grim winter of 1941-42 when the Germans were driven back from the Soviet capital.

The oldtime Russian winter has been building up since Christmas when the mercury plunged below zero. Ever since it's been getting progressively colder. This morning the thermometer registered 31 degrees below zero.

The coldest recorded temperature for Moscow was chalked up Jan. 17, 1940, with a low of 43.6 degrees below zero.

Moscow's favorite cold wave story this year is about Osman Kumukov, who took a 20-minute dip through a hole in the ice of Moscow river on New Year's Eve. He said he just wanted to prove a human being can swim the year round if properly trained. The temperature was 29 below zero.

What Can The People Believe?

When the anti-trust lawyers in Washington filed their suit to put the A&P out of business, they immediately handed out for all the newspapers of the United States a story giving in detail their "allegations" against this company.

When we published advertisements giving our side of the case, they protested, even though they had made, and have continued to make, in newspapers, in speeches and over the radio these charges that would seriously damage our business, if they were believed by the public.

Every week millions of American housewives patronize A&P stores. Many of them would not want to deal with the kind of people that the anti-trust lawyers represent us to be.

We think we have a right to protect this 90-year old business which has made it possible for millions of American families to get more and better food for their money, which is providing high-wage employment for 110,000 Americans and which is helping millions of farmers to improve the methods of distributing their produce.

No answer by us would be necessary if the anti-trust lawyers were always right.

But they, like all other human beings, can be wrong.

In this case we know they are wrong.

They have been wrong before.

In case after case they made charges against A&P which were proved in court to be utterly without foundation.

We will prove that statement right up to the hilt.

The anti-trust lawyers tell the public that they won a previous anti-trust suit against us at Danville, Illinois. They did.

What they do not tell you is that they brought case after case against the A&P in federal courts all over the United States. Before they won this case they suffered three defeats.

The anti-trust lawyers have told everybody about the time that the courts said they were right. We think you are entitled to know about the three times the courts said they were wrong.

Now we are going to tell you about the first one. In future advertisements we will tell you about all of them.

The Washington Bread Case

In April, 1941, the anti-trust lawyers brought a criminal suit in Washington, D. C.

They charged that the A&P, two grocery chain competitors, two labor unions and other good American citizens had conspired to fix the price of bread.

Can anyone imagine any charge calculated to be more damaging to a retail grocery business? They asked millions of people to believe that we were the kind of grocers who would take bread out of the mouths of poor people and make it harder for a wife and mother to feed her family.

These charges were false.

In that case it developed that the A&P and the two competitors who were charged with conspiring with us to maintain high bread prices actually sold bread cheaper than most of the other stores in Washington.

The anti-trust lawyers presented and argued their case. When they were through, Federal District Judge Allen T. Goldsborough ruled that A&P and the other defendants did not even need to put in a defense. He instructed the jury to bring in a verdict of "not guilty."

Judge Goldsborough said to the anti-trust lawyers:

"If you were to show this record to any experienced trial lawyer in the world, he would tell you that there was not any evidence at all."

"Honestly, I have never in my over forty years' experience seen tried a case that was as absolutely devoid of evidence as this. That is the honest truth. I have never seen one like it."

So here was a case in which the anti-trust lawyers made seriously damaging charges against the A&P, in support of which, in the words of the court, they did not have "any evidence at all."

This was not the only time the anti-trust lawyers made charges against the A&P which the courts said were not true. In future ads we are going to tell you about these other suits. We are not going to duck, either. We are going to tell you about the criminal suit that the anti-trust lawyers won at Danville, Illinois.

The anti-trust lawyers say that they are not attacking "bigness" or efficiency. They have to say that because the courts have decided that "bigness" and efficiency and selling at low prices is not a crime.

But the fact is crystal clear that they only brought their bread suit against the big companies and against the companies that sold good bread at the lowest prices; just as in this current suit they are attacking a big company that sells good food cheap.

We are going to show the American people that the suit to destroy A&P is really a suit against efficiency and against real competition.

The real question involved in this suit is whether businessmen are going to be encouraged to do a better and more efficient job; or whether we are going to let the anti-trust lawyers in Washington blow the whistle on anybody who gets big by giving the people more for their money.

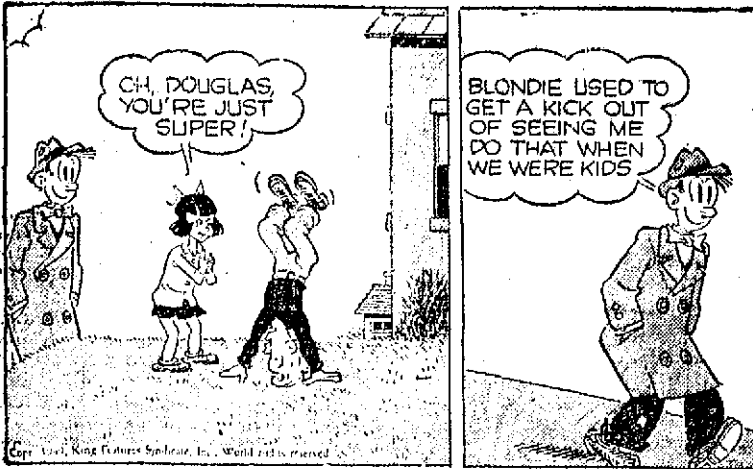

No one can make us believe that it is a crime to try to sell the best quality food at the lowest possible price.
